Typically 2-7 days from enquiry to meeting

A meeting is held with the board and the IP, he reviews current financial position, future prospects and directors risk. Agrees not a viable company. He/she agrees to act as nominated liquidator.

Directors inform members (shareholders) that liquidation route chosen. Members nominate the IP at a shareholders meeting.

IP collects creditor information and calls creditors meeting. Posts adverts for meeting in London Gazette and local papers. Creditors can attend meeting if give 24 hours notice. Directors prepare statement of affairs.

Liquidation commences proper. If you/directors wish to buy assets (for phoenix) make offer, you may be beaten. IP accepts best offer. IP gets on with the following:

Creditors appoint liquidator (not necessarily the same IP). they can appoint a creditor's committee (3-5 people), to monitor liquidation process and fees.

Creditors meeting held 14 days later. Director acts as chairman of meeting (must attend). IP conducts meeting. Creditors question directors over cause of failure of the company.

15 days after notice

Realisation of assets and adjudication of creditors claims. Reporting outcome to creditors.

Payments made to creditors if any value left after CVL process. Deals with disputes.

Investigates conduct of the directors, shadow directors and officers of the company. Reports findings to DTI

If directors have acted wrongfully or illegally you face a possible disqualification action or personal liability for company debts.

If directors acted properly you get on with your life. Watch out for personal guarantees though. CVL often better than struggling on.

Overall 3-4 weeks from initial approach. Liquidation can take several months or years.
